The Glenmede Quantitative U.S. Large Cap Environmental Equity Composite had a total return for First Quarter 2021 of +11.9% (+11.7% net of fees). On a relative basis, the Quantitative U.S. Large Cap Environmental Equity Composite outperformed the Russell 1000 Index by +6.0% (+5.8% net). The strategy is managed to exclude companies with poor environmental ratings (source: MSCI ESG).

For the First Quarter 2021, the S&P 500 and Russell 1000 Indexes returned +6.2% and +5.9%, respectively. Investor sentiment was boosted by mass distribution of COVID-19 vaccines, supportive fiscal/monetary policies and strong fourth quarter earnings and revenues. However, improved expectations for economic growth increased the risk for higher inflation. The 10-Year Treasury yield doubled from .85% to about 1.7%. Rising discount rates had a negative impact on the relative performance of growth versus value stocks. The Russell 1000 Value Index (+11.3%) outperformed the Russell 1000 Growth Index (+0.9%) by about +10.3%, the largest outperformance since first quarter 2001. The best performing sectors in the Russell 1000 Index were Energy (+30.7%) and Financials (+16.2%). The worst performing sectors were Information Technology (+1.3%) and Consumer Staples (+1.6%).

For the quarter, the strategy had net positive contributions from multi-factor stock selection models, including biases towards stocks with lower valuations. The strategy was positively impacted from positions with lower relative market capitalizations versus the Russell 1000 Index. The average stock in the Index outperformed with a total return of +10.9% (equal-weighted). The strategy reflected stock selection outperformance in eight of eleven sectors. The most positive relative contributions were in the Information Technology and Consumer Discretionary sectors. The most negative relative contributions were in the Energy and Communication Services sectors. Industry group biases had minor impact on performance from relative overweightings in Financials/Information Technology offset by underweightings in Consumer Discretionary/Industrials stocks.

The latest U.S. real GDP estimate for Fourth Quarter was raised to +4.3% versus +33.4% for Third Quarter 2020. GDP reflected gains in personal consumption expenditures (+2.3%), fixed investments (+18.6%) and exports (+22.3%). Lower federal spending (-0.9%) was a negative contributor. Many economists project real GDP growth of 4% to 7% for 2021. Looking forward, as nations manage through the COVID-19 pandemic and economies recover, we expect strong corporate earnings growth for 2021 and 2022. Currently, our leading industry group indicators target overweightings in Financials, Utilities and Communication Services, and underweightings in Consumer Discretionary, Industrials and Energy. We believe this strategy is well positioned with its multifactor approach favoring stocks with cheaper valuations, stronger fundamentals, positive earnings/revenue estimate trends and attractive technicals.
